ACGME Parker J. Palmer Courage to Lead Award
Frequently Asked Questions (FAQs)

Why did the ACGME establish the Courage to Lead Award?
The ACGME recognizes that designated institutional officials (DIOs) face many challenges in creating an environment for educational programs; facilitating residents’ and fellows’ ethical, professional, and personal development; and ensuring safe and appropriate care of patients. The Courage to Lead Award acknowledges the leadership and commitment of DIOs who foster an excellent environment for resident/fellow education.

Who is Parker J. Palmer?
Parker J. Palmer is a highly respected writer and traveling teacher who works independently on issues in education, community, spirituality, and social change. In 1998, "The Leadership Project," a survey of 11,000 educators, named Palmer as one of the 30 most influential senior leaders in higher education and one of 10 key agenda-setters of the past decade. "He has inspired a generation of teachers and reformers with evocative visions of community, knowing, and spiritual wholeness." Palmer is senior associate of the American Association for Higher Education, and senior adviser to the Fetzer Institute, for which he designed the Teacher Formation Program for K-12 teachers. Author of such widely praised books as The Company of Strangers, The Active Life, To Know As We Are Known, and The Courage to Teach, he holds a PhD from the University of California at Berkeley. He lives in Madison, Wisconsin. Reach more about Dr. Palmer’s work here.

How do I make a nomination?
Download the nomination form from the ACGME website, complete it, and submit it, along with support letters and curriculum vitae, according to the directions on the form. All materials (nomination form, signed support letters, and curriculum vitae) must arrive by email in one PDF (portable PDF files are not acceptable). To do this, assemble all materials and scan. The resulting PDF can then be emailed. Material received in piecemeal or that includes unsigned letters will not be accepted. Direct any questions to DeLonda Dowling: ddowling@acgme.org or 312.755.5059.

What is the deadline for nominations?
The deadline is Wednesday, April 6, 2022, and all nominations must be received by 5:00 p.m. Central. Nominations received after that date/time will not be accepted.

Are associate DIOs eligible for this award? No.

Does associate DIO experience count towards experience as a DIO?
No. Eligible DIOs MUST have at least five years of experience as a DIO.

How many nominees receive the award?
There are three award categories:

- Small hospital (1-24 residency programs)
- Medium hospital (25-49 residency programs)
- Large academic centers (50 or more residency programs)

Up to one DIO will be selected from each of these three groups (or any combination thereof at the ACGME Awards Committee’s discretion), and up to three awards may be given in a particular year.

What is awarded?
Each Courage to Lead awardee will receive a plaque, as well as travel expenses paid by the ACGME for the recipient and a guest to travel to the ACGME Annual Educational Conference (awardee’s registration will also be waived) to receive the award. In addition, each awardee receives an expenses-paid retreat experience unlike any other. New and former awardees will meet in a setting designed to support and honor them and their work and create a space that invites but does not intrude, fostering a sense of community that embraces Parker J. Palmer’s Courage to Teach and Lead concepts.

The retreat is typically held the second or third week of May, beginning on a Wednesday evening and ending on a Friday afternoon. Some former awardees have had this to say about their retreat experience:

My work as a program director for 26 residents/year for 20+ years, module director for >5000 medical students and over 16 years as Credentials Committee chair for 1,100 physicians has directly benefited from attending Parker Palmer Courage to Teach Retreats and from the sustaining relationships in this unique community. Not only has the fellowship and venue been superb but (in my opinion) the focus on wholeness has had great impact. The definitions of “community, the practice of poetry, a broader vision of truth” are met with examples at the retreat for reflection by our outward selves and inward selves.
C. Bruce Alexander, MD
President, Alpha Omega Alpha Honor Medical Society

In a job where there as so many competing demands, it was refreshing to work at a completely different pace! Just GO…Our world does not allow for us to do these things often enough in this digital, instant access age… JUST GO…you won’t be sorry you did!
Nedd Brown, EdD
Associate Dean of Graduate Medical Education
Designated Institutional Official
University of South Dakota Sanford School of Medicine

The retreat (and the incredible leaders) provided space and time for us to stop and reframe – and now, 3 years later, I continue to benefit from lessons learned.
Lois L. Bready, MD
Senior Associate Dean for Graduate Medical Education
Designated Institutional Official
Professor and Vice Chair, Department of Anesthesiology
UTHSC San Antonio

Receiving the Parker J. Palmer Courage to Teach Award and attending the retreat were transformational experiences in my career. The retreat created a passion around teaching, and I became aware that this is where I should be focusing my academic energy. The conversation went from "What are you going to do after being program director?” to "How can I create a learning environment that enhances the development of young physicians.
Joseph T. Gilhooly, MD
Former Program Director
Professor, Pediatrics, Neonatal-perinatal medicine
Oregon Health & Science University

The retreat of Parker Palmer recipients was a true landmark in my career as a teacher and learner. The ability to pause and sit with other program directors to reflect upon the work we do provided me the ability to appreciate what I contribute, those we teach and the community we have built.
Byron Joyner, MD
Director, Pediatric Urology
Seattle Children’s Hospital

The retreat was a remarkably powerful experience which enriched both my professional and personal life. It stimulated a renewed interest in the literature of reflective practice, as well as a wonderful resurgence in enjoyment of the world of poetry. I gained a better understanding of what I am trying to accomplish as a DIO, and I believe I ask better questions and am a much deeper listener.
Douglas B. Dorner, MD, FACS
Senior Vice President, Medical Education and Research
Director of Medical Education/ACGME Designated Institutional Official
Iowa Health
The retreat has led me to be more intentionally self-reflective about my work, and my mission in my department. As a result, I have branched out into new areas for me, teaching my senior residents to contemplate their futures in a purposeful manner (including writing a personal mission statement), and to create a faculty development workshop for junior faculty members.

Terry Massagli, MD
Professor, Rehabilitation Medicine and Pediatrics Rehabilitation Medicine Residency Director Endowed University of Washington

The retreat was an amazing opportunity for me, it created a safe environment that fostered personal and professional renewal through time and space to reflect on life and work. It allowed for networking of like-minded teachers and leaders in healthcare to share “why we do what we do,” indicate resources available, and opportunities for collaboration. Personally, this gave me an invitation to help foster the “vocational” aspect of our work through mindfulness, self-care and care of each other.
